

RUSSELL HELD AS A CAPTIVE, SAYS HIS WIFE

Missing Man, She Declares, Has Been Spirited Away for Some Strange Business Reason and Is Detained by "A Certain Man in New York."

WILL NOT TELL NAME OF THE MAN SHE SUSPECTS.

Announces that She Means to Run Him Down with Detectives and Then Prefer Serious Charges—Says Police Are Doing Nothing.

Mrs. John L. Russell, wife of the missing secretary and treasurer and largest stockholder of the Journey & Burham Company, of Brooklyn, declared to-day that she had personally discovered a clue that convinces her that her husband has been made a prisoner by a certain prominent New York business man who has some secret motive for keeping Russell out of the way.

Though Mrs. Russell has employed five private detectives to aid her in her search for her husband, she could not wait for results from their efforts and yesterday began to run down every trail that offered her lead from a friend that Russell had been seen purchasing a ticket for Boston last Friday, the day he was last seen. At first she thought he might have gone to Bristol, Mass., where he has relatives.

"I made every preparation to go to Boston," said Mrs. Russell to an Evening World reporter to-day, "but just as I was about to start, I had what I might call a woman's intuition that I could get news of him in New York."

She Got a Surprise.
"I started at once for the office of a prominent New York business man with whom my husband had long been intimately associated. I also knew this man very well and believed that he would assist me in my search.

"Judge, therefore, my surprise, when after pressing him for some hint that might lead me to my husband he turned on me with: 'Why don't you keep quiet and stop all this noise? If you will give up this newspaper talk Mr. Russell will come home.'"

"As soon as I could recover my composure after this startling statement I cross-examined this man until he finally owned up that he had seen Mr. Russell on Friday afternoon and talked with him. He said that my husband came to his office shortly after luncheon time.
He said he was nervous and excited and told him that he (Mr. Russell) was going to Trenton. Further than that I could not get a word out of him.

"But I have consulted a lawyer and will take steps to make this man tell all he knows about my husband's whereabouts. Upon the advice of the lawyer I will not disclose his name at the present time, but if some results are not soon forthcoming, charges of a sensational kind may be looked for.

He Has Plenty of Money.
"When this man told me that Mr.
Russell was nervous and excited my first thought was that he might have become a bankrupt and had obliterated himself rather than face the disaster.
Thereupon I went around to every bank and trust company where Mr. Russell kept an account and made inquiries.
I was again told that his financial footing was as sure as it ever was, and that generally balances stood to his account in every institution. Mr. Russell had 500,000 in the bank, I was told.
I told him when he left Brooklyn, I had been involved in any trouble he had have drawn out more money, but I have learned that not a single cent of his has come in to any of his banks.

"I fully believe that this man knows what has become of him, and that he has some strong motive for concealing his whereabouts from me.
I believe that my husband has been spirited away for business reasons, and I will hold a private detective and a lawyer now working on the case, and with my personal efforts, I do not count the police of Brooklyn for they only look wise and grunt—some results should be obtained in a short time."

What the Sleuths Did.

All the Brooklyn sleuths did in the search for the missing man was to endeavor to locate the sender of the package which contained Mr. Russell's keys.
This package was sent to the Journey & Burham company and was received on Monday. The police found out that it had been sent from an express office at Canal street and Broadway. That is as far as their inquiries went.

Mrs. Russell still asserts that the keys were not sent by Russell, as the handwriting on the package was not his.
She has secured the wrapper of the package and will use it as evidence after she manages to run down those who she believes are restraining her husband.

Miss Marie Russell, the missing man's daughter by his first wife, who came on from Milwaukee a few days ago to assist in the search for her father, said that until several months ago she had lived in Brooklyn with her father and stepmother, but that differences having arisen between herself and Mrs. Russell, she had gone to live with friends in Milwaukee. She does not believe that her father's disappearance can be attributed to any ill feeling between herself and Mrs. Russell.

"I am able to form no theory whatsoever as to the cause of my father's disappearance," she said. "It is a mystery to me. I have visited morgues and hospitals in New York and Brooklyn every day since my arrival and have employed detectives to aid in the search. I sincerely hope that if Mrs. Russell has left town she has found a clue."

Miss Russell is now with her uncle, Edward Renner, at No. 19-12 Stanhope street, Williamsburg.

BAREFOOT, THEY MARCH AND PRAY

Devout Italians Begin the Celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel with a Plea for Pope Leo.

FIVE DAYS OF WORSHIP.

At All of Their Churches in the City
They Gather with Bowed Heads, Marching Through the Streets in Devotion to Their Patron Saint.

With feet bared and heads bowed in prayer, thousands of Italians walked through the streets of Greater New York to-day to celebrate the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, an annual observance in which "Little Italy" always takes prominent part.

At sunrise the pilgrimages from home to church and the places of rendezvous in the several Italian communities began. These will continue until tonight, when Italian homes will be illuminated.
Particular stress is placed upon the occasion this year because of the condition of the Pope, for whose recovery special prayers are being offered up.
The custom of walking to church barefooted is in honor of the pilgrimage of Christ and his disciples.

The Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel in One Hundred and Fifteenth street near First avenue was the centre of to-day's services. Italians from all over the greater city gathered at the religious devotions there. The church was decorated and the Italian communities were in gala dress.

The feast inaugurated to-day continues for five days. In every Italian home an altar is erected and devout worshipers are bent in prayer before it at intervals during the day.

TWO BURGLARS SINGLE-HANDED

Policeman Connolly, of Sheepshead Bay, Makes Simultaneous Double Capture—Sets His Associates Wondering.

The police of the Sheepshead Bay predict are studying the report turned in by Patrolman George Connolly of the arrest of two men on a burglary charge.
They are asking each other: "How did Connolly do it?" "Did he hypnotize his men?" "What became of the scythe?"

According to the report, Connolly saw two men break into the ticket office of the Brighton Beach Railroad at Avenue U. This is also the office of the Homecrest Building and Loan Association.

One of the men, who after his arrest gave the name of George W. Anderson.
Forty-two years old, living at No. 171 Montrose street, Brooklyn, took a scythe from a closet and cut down the electric lights.

Connolly remained outside until the men were through burglarizing. On their exodus from the building the policeman told them they were under arrest. "A man giving the name of James P. Smith, thirty-four years old, of No.
789 Kent avenue, Brooklyn, submitted, but Anderson, according to Connolly's document in the case, drew a rapier ten inches long and attacked him.

After a struggle Anderson broke and fled. Connolly fired a shot and a bullet after the fleeing man, commanded him to halt, and drawing his pocket stick, told the man to stop. The man, who had the head, which laid the scalp open for several inches.

When the police's associates who have studied the report want to know is:
"How long is Connolly's arm?" If the patrolman pointed out that he did not Smith break and run, was it because he was hypnotized? They say Connolly will have to do some explaining when he appears at the station.

However this may be, the essential fact remains—the arrested both men.

HORSE BLOCKS BRIDGE.

James Shaft Into Cable Network and Has to Be Sawed Out.

An excited horse jammed the shafts of the wagon he was drawing into the network of the Brooklyn bridge on the north roadway near the Manhattan pier at 9 o'clock to-day and effectually blockaded all surface cars and vehicles bound from Brooklyn to New York.

The surface cars piled up one behind the other, until, heedless of the hundred-foot-long line of cars, a cable car came along the bridge, into Brooklyn and up the hill.

Most of the passengers in the stalled cars got out and walked across. It was necessary to saw the shafts to end the tie up.

Train Kills Car Inspector.

William Webster, forty-five years old, of No. 256 Eleventh street, Jersey City, a car inspector employed by the New York, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, was run over by a train of cars on pier No. 8 and instantly killed today. He was walking along the pier when knocked down. His body was removed to Hughes's morgue.

Saks & Company

Summer Suits for Men.

Ready for Service.

There is much good in that tailoring system of ours; it requires individual cutting and fashioning for every garment we create. It compels the craftsman to exercise his talent and intelligence thoroughly, since his product is readily identified. This insures that distinctiveness which is quite foreign to the average "ready-made" garment. As for the shape, you cannot imagine all the clever little knacks that our tailors employ to make it permanent.
